

Accidental Death and Dismemberment Insurance while at work

Our policy for Accidental Death and Dismemberment at work can provide compensation for your expenses in the event of an accident and trigger a tax-free, one-time payment if the result in decreased bodily function or reduced capacity to work. The policy can also provide compensation for diagnoses that are not normally covered by accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

- Compensation for expenses in the event of an accident
- Compensation for invalidity as a result of an accident
- Expanded definition of what is considered an accident
- Applies during working hours and during travel to and from work

With our policy for Accidental Death and Dismemberment while at work, you are insured during working hours and while travelling to and from work. Our insurance covers major and minor incidents and provides extra security.

You can probably live with a small scar from a graze, but an injury after a serious accident can have consequences you may not have imagined – especially financial consequences.

GROUP SCHEME INSURANCE

Covers more than usual

Under our insurance, complaints such as frostbite, heat stroke and sunburn, infection from a tick bite, sudden torsional stress on the knee or a ruptured Achilles' tendon, detached retina, sudden deafness, heart attack or stroke are also classed as accidental injuries.

The insurance includes the following

In the event of an accident, compensation can be paid for:

- medical expenses
- dental expenses
- travel expenses
- additional costs
- expenses for rehabilitation and aid resources
- medical or financial invalidity
- scars and other changes in appearance
- crisis assistance
- death
- daily allowance

This insurance applies during working hours and during travel to and from work.

Compensation paid out under the insurance policy is tax free.
